

matters; we think the former is proper discipline, and the latter arrant tyranny. We, at — Hospital, have been told that our Matron, whom we all like and admire, is not permitted by someone in the background to join, and that we are expected not to join either. We can't understand a place like this willingly hanging back from a great and successful movement, but if the authorities "intend to take a back seat," as an American friend of mine would call it, we, and many others of its Nurses, do not aspire to the same position—and it is pretty plain hundreds of Nurses all over the country are of our opinion.—Yours, &c.,

BRITISH NURSES.

P.S.—You will understand why we cannot sign our names.

To the Editor of "The Nursing Record."

Sir,—I am most unfortunately at the same Hospital as your "Constant Readers." If we had not had such lectures on the subject I would have joined the British Nurses' Association long ago. Then I could have gone to this splendid Conversazione, it seems, for nothing. Now I either cannot go at all, or I must pay five shillings, and be taken in as a favour by a friend. Can you wonder that I and other Nurses are DISGUSTED.
