The Queen, Nov. 21st, 1891, says—"The Artistic Underwear Company, 33, Fore-street, E.C., offer to supply ladies direct with their goods at manufacturer's prices. That it is well worth for ladies to avail themselves of this proposal we are convinced from an examination of the various articles, and the prices charged for them. Everything is, indeed, most marvellously cheap. Nor is this cheapness attained at any sacrifice of quality, for the materials and workmanship are good, and the cut and style of trimming adopted warrant the use of the adjective 'artistic.' All the garments are, indeed, most dainty and charming. Many of the nightgowns, chemises, &c., are not only profusely trimmed with embroidery, but are further enhanced in appearance by the addition of narrow white and coloured ribbons, according to the latest fancy. By the aid of a copiously illustrated catalogue, it is possible to order a complete outfit from any part of the country."
