CELERY COFFEE.

(THE CELERY COFFEE CO., 654, Eglinton Street, Glasgow.)

On account of its lightness, palatability, and readiness of digestion, we can cordially recommend this elegant and acceptable article. It can be taken by anybody without the slightest fear of indigestion or other unpleasant effects, which usually follow the use of ordinary coffee. It is refreshing and slightly stimulating, and drinks, a very desirable feature in all beverages, "thin" without cloying the palate. It should be used in the same proportion and like ordinary coffee, but must not be boiled, simply infused. The flavour of celery is most pleasing, and it can be used with perfect safety even by children. It deserves every success.

SWINBORNE'S ISINGLASS.

Many articles have been puffed at one time or another as specifics for diseases of all kinds, and sometimes on reasonable grounds, but as often as not, the advertiser's object has been only too palpable, and the prevailing epidemics have been made to serve the purpose of pushing some particular goods. It is for the scientists of the medical profession to find the cure and proclaim the remedy, and until they do so the public, we suppose, must endure the disease with whatever patience it can command. Nature has great recuperative powers, and will herself soon throw off the poison which the malady has generated in the system and commence her own healing process, and it is when this stage is reached that everything should be done to guard against relapse and assist nature in her efforts to cure. Chills must be guarded against, and strength-giving but easily digestible food should
