

SANITAS CREAM.

(THE SANITAS COMPANY, LTD., Bethnal Green, N.)

This elegant preparation has come to us in an enamelled, "squeezeable" tube. It is delightfully soft and pleasant to use, covers well, and leaves no "greasy" results; therefore can be used on almost any occasion without the fear of soiling the dress. It is of course an antiseptic of great value, and from its portability and readiness of application should become popular where it is indicated for example in dressing wounds, abrasions or, as happily suggested, as a remedy for perspiring feet. It is perfectly soluble in water, and sold in tubes at 1s.

OIL OF EUCALYPTUS GLOBULUS.

(THE TASMANIAN EUCALYPTUS OIL COMPANY, 130, Leadenhall Street, E.C.)

Oil of Eucalyptus has reached such an eminence in the world of therapeutics, that we readily and warmly welcome this "Platypus Brand" of the Company's distillation. They submitted to us, and we have carefully tested, a remarkably fine sample, absolutely free from any injurious admixture, pungent, yet delicate. In bronchitic affections, sore throat, asthma, whooping cough, etc.,

where such a remedy is indicated by the medical attendant, this oil will be found exceedingly useful, whether taken internally or used with a spray. As an antiseptic it commends itself for its penetrating and pleasant properties. We are supported on these, the results of our own tests, by Mr. H. Hebling, F.C.S., Dr. F. W. Passmore, and Dr. H. Benjafield, who all speak in the highest praise of it.

HEAT CONDUCTORS.

[STANLEY'S PATENT.]

(Messrs. S. ARMOUR AND Co., 28, Hatton Garden, London, E.C.)

This ingenious invention is in the form of a rather long, flat piece of metal, at one end pointed, the other, a ball. Two of these—at the pointed end—are inserted in the joint, poultry, fish, or whatever is required to be cooked, and by this means the heat is conducted right to the centre. The saving of time and fuel in the cooking are considerably minimized, while the meat retains the gravy and nutriment, which renders it more digestible. They are sold in pairs for 2/6; the ends being shaped according to whether they are required for use in roasting or boiling.
