

The Bart's League.

THE Bart's students have a most flourishing list of Associated Clubs in which they can find a vent for the indulgence of hobbies of all kinds, besides having facilities for discussing subjects of professional interest. We are, therefore, not surprised to see a sympathetic notice in the St. Bartholomew's Hospital Journal concerning the formation of the League of St. Bartholomew's Nurses. Nurses, so far, have, for the most part, led isolated lives, their work being commonly supposed to furnish them with an exclusive and all-absorbing interest, and should any of their number be so unreasonable as to desire more, there is always the recreation afforded by a journey on the top of an omnibus to fall back upon. Is it to be wondered at that when they take up private work their patients are apt to complain that they can only talk on one subject—their work? It is a truism that all work and no play engenders dulness, and although, with professional women everything else must take a very subsidiary place to their profession, yet there are many occasions when they can meet for mutual help and pleasure, and may cultivate some of the hitherto neglected sides of their nature.

We, therefore, must express our congratulations, that in the formation of the League of St. Bartholomew's Nurses, although it is, no doubt, primarily a professional association, there is a lighter side. We are glad also to hear that the list of members now numbers some 200 nurses, that which we publish below being made up to September 30th.

A meeting of the provisional committee met this week, Miss Isla Stewart presiding, to consider the further organization of the League, and to discuss the arrangements for a general meeting of the members.
