A HAPPY EASTER.

ONCE more Easter has come, and with it all the happiness and joy that it brings, for Easter is to many, without doubt, the very happiest season of the whole year. Christmas has a joy and sweetness of its own, but there is always a tinge of sadness in this festival, for the shadow of the cross falls across; the cradle at Bethlehem, and, even as we worship in adoring wonder, we realise that the Incarnation is the first step on the road to Calvary, where was enacted the greatest tragedy that the world has ever seen. But at Easter our happiness is complete and unalloyed, it is the keener from the sharpness of the contrast between the grief of Good Friday and the joy of Easter morning, and, to many nurses, one of the privileges which they most value in the course of the whole year is that of being able to attend the services of the Church on Easter Day and to share in the joy and thanksgiving of the season. It follows that it behoves all Matrons and Sisters to recognise their obligation to make such arrangements, when possible, as will facilitate the attendance of their nurses at the services
