perfectly well that he will be unable to keep polo ponies or a shooting-box out of his pay; if he wants them he must find the money elsewhere, or embark on some more lucrative profession.

It is always open to nurses with whom money is bound to be the chief object to take up private nursing, which, admittedly, is more remunerative than hospital work; but if a nurse accepts the post of Sister in a poor hospital, with its advantages and its congenial work, she must face the fact that it is im-possible for her to receive "adequate" remuneration Yours faithfully, in bullion.

M. MOLLETT, Matron.

Royal South Hants and Southampton Hospital, Southampton.

[We did not claim for Sisters that they should receive salaries which "run to evening frocks," but that they should be paid a salary "which will enable them to make adequate provision for the days when them to make adequate provision for the days when they can work no longer and to take a restful holiday at the end of a year's hard work." We were not re-ferring to the salaries paid to Sisters in county hos-pitals, our remarks applied equally to many metro-politan ones. We should be glad to know what other Matrone and Sisters this which the subject. politan ones. We should be glad to know what a Matrons and Sisters think on this subject.—ED.]

To the Editor of the "British Journal of Nursing."

DEAR MADAM,—I have just resigned the post of Sister in a country hospital, where my salary was $\pounds 24$ I could not afford to give the best years of my working life at the price. The cook in the same institution had £32 and perquisites. It is indeed time hospital committees realised the responsibilities, educational and otherwise, of hospital Sisters. £30 should be the minimum salary given.—Yours sincerely, E. S. [Further correspondence is unavoidably held over till next week.—ED.]

Comments and Replies.

Inquirer.—All the principal London and Provincial Infirmaries now train for three years, and we should strongly advise you, if possible, to enter one for this period. You cannot get a thorough training in less, though you might get a useful insight into general nursing work. If this is what you wish to do, you might find a suitable opportunity in some cottage hoslitals. An advertisement in the columns of this Journal would probably be your best method of making known your need. Infirmary Nurse. — Write to the Matron, Sir Julian Goldsmid's Home of Rest for Nurses, 12, Sussex Square, Brighton. As you and your friend desire to share a room the charge would be a guinea a week each. When a separate bedroom is occupied the charge is 25s.

Provincial Matron. - We have referred to the Report of the Select Committee in another column. It may be obtained through any bookseller, price 1s. 6d., or from Wyman and Sons, Ltd., 109, Fetter Lane, Fleet Street, E.C. We hope you will use your influence to induce nurses to study it. Every nurse should acquaint herself with its contents, otherwise she can-not he observe with professional effects. not be abreast with her professional affairs.

Maternity Nurse. - A baby's binder should be applied so as to keep in place comfortably without slip-ping, but it is a mistake to put it on too tight, as many nurses do.

Our five Buinea Prize Competition.

A Prize of Five Guineas will be awarded each quarter by the Editor to the author of the best article on some practical nursing subject of about 2,000 words in length, with illustrations, of which photographs or engravings must be enclosed, and under the following conditions:-

1. Each competitor must enclose with his or her article a sealed envelope, outside which is written the title of the article, and inside a piece of paper con-taining the name of the article and the author's full name and address. No letter or other enclosure should give a clue to the identity of the competitor. Envelopes should be marked "£5 5s. Prize Competition."

2. The decision as to the winner of the Prize will be made by the Editor, and this decision must be accepted by each competitor as final and unquestionable. The Prize cannot be won twice in any one year by the same competitor.

The Editor reserves to herself the right to pubish, if she thinks fit, any of the articles received for the competition; and in such an event will pay the author of such article the sum of one guinea, such article to become the property and copyright of the BRITISH JOURNAL OF NURSING.

All articles competing for the Prize must be received by the Editor, at 20, Upper Wimpole Street, London, W., not later than SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 23RD. The successful article will appear in the Autumn Special Number.
