ignorance of a nurse, and death instead of recovery result. There are, he said, hundreds of nurses who know nothing of the work they undertake, who are doing infinite harm. It is very disappointing for a doctor to find his efforts frustrated, but the matter is now one for the public, who are the persons chiefly affected. The doctors and nurses have done all they can; it now remains for the public to act.

MISS H. L. PEARSE, Superintendent of School Nurses under the London County Council, seconded the resolution, and said—I speak with the experience of one who has been a private nurse after one year's training, and at the conclusion of my contract found it necessary to enter a hospital again as a probationer, in order to get an adequate training. It is the middle classes who suffer most acutely from indifferent and bad nurses, because they do not send for a nurse for trivial ailments, but only in cases of serious illness. Medical men cannot be sure of obtaining properly trained nurses. They may send to an institution known to them as reliable, and every nurse may be engaged; so they send to another and take the nurse on trust. It is time this state of things should cease, and a minimum standard of efficiency for trained nurses be defined and enforced. I have great pleasure in seconding the resolution.

The resolution, on being put to the meeting, was carried unanimously.

The meeting concluded with a hearty vote of thanks to the Chairman and speakers, proposed by Mrs. Bedford Fenwick and seconded by Miss E. M. Musson, Matron of the General Hospital, Swansea.

In acknowledging the thanks of those present on her own behalf and that of the other speakers, Lady Helen said she was glad the meeting was satisfied with the part they had played. It was now their turn to go out and advance the cause in the interests of which the meeting had been convened.

THE OPPOSITION TACTICS.

Mr. Sydney Holland, the leader of the opposition to the State Registration of Trained Nurses, did not attend the Caxton Hall meeting, and thus, as Lady Helen Munro Ferguson, the Chairman, subsequently pointed out, "missed this excellent opportunity of stating his objections to registration frankly and freely when they could have been met and answered in fair and open debate."

Mr. Holland took the alternative course of addressing a letter to the London and provincial press to appear the day after the meeting, detailing once more the theories which he advanced before the Select Committee of the House of Commons on Registration, and which, when weighed in the balances, were found wanting. The letter was so admirably answered by Lady Helen Munro Ferguson the following day that nothing further need be said.
