ASSOCIATION OF HOSPITAL MATRONS.

The following correspondence has taken place between up to judge such questions, and by its composition is peculiarly fitted for this purpose.

My Committee are convinced that this decision will inevitably set up a most unfortunate precedent, and that moreover it will hamper all attempts to maintain a high standard, not only in the training of Fever Nurses, but also in all other branches of Nursing.

They feel sure that you do not realise how strongly these views are held in the world of Nursing, and therefore, as a body representative of many branches of Nursing and of many parts of the country, my Committee thought it their duty to lay before you, with all possible respect, their opinion on this matter.

For your information, I herewith submit a copy of the Resolution as passed at the Committee and entered in the Minutes of the Meeting, November 24th, 1927:—

Resolution.

"That this Meeting greatly regrets that the Minister of Health should have directed the General Nursing Council for England and Wales for England and Wales to recognise as a Complete Training School for Fever Nurses, a Hospital where the average daily occupation during a period of 5 years is only 15, and where the clinical material is restricted.

"The Members of the Association not only regard the work in the Hospital concerned as inadequate to give a satisfactory training in Fever Nursing, but they consider that this decision of the Minister will undoubtedly tend to prevent the maintenance of a satisfactory standard in this and other branches of Nursing."

R. Cox-Davies,

Hon. Secretary.

To The Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain, M.P.

Minister of Health,
Ministry of Health

Whitehall, S.W.1.

SIR,—I am instructed by my Committee to convey to you with all possible respect, their great regret at your recent decision to allow the Hastings Fever Hospital to rank as a Complete Training School for Fever Nurses.

They are themselves convinced that no Hospital of not more than 15 daily occupied beds and of such restricted clinical, material can give an adequate Nurse training; also, that the longer period of such training in that Hospital, which you require to be enforced, will be valueless under these circumstances.

They greatly regret that the considered opinion of the General Nursing Council in this connection should have been disregarded by yourself in giving this decision, as it is a body expressly set
