

Miss Ward was trained at St. Mary's, and Miss Freshfield at Guy's, and not only their colleagues in those schools but the whole nursing profession must be proud of the way in which they have upheld its traditions. Miss Ward hopes to proceed again to active service in the near future.

ON ACTIVE SERVICE. THE BRITISH RED CROSS SOCIETY.

The 7th unit, which was to have gone to Ostend, was unavoidably held up when the condition of things in the immediate neighbourhood became so serious. It is hoped, however, to send it out to some other place with as little delay as possible.

The party to Biarritz was composed of the following nurses:—Miss Sophia Oxley (in charge) and the Misses Margaret A. Isaac, Eva Lepingwell, Elizabeth Rogers, Elizabeth A. G. Eaton, Margaret L. Gwilliam.

The party to Dinard was composed of:—Miss Scott-White (in charge) and the Misses M. E. Carey, Lilian A. Carter, Kate Chalker, L. Greany, E. R. G. Robertson, L. S. Sales, Lilian M. Trotter, Alice Willcox.

ST. JOHN AMBULANCE ASSOCIATION.

THE IRISH NURSES' ASSOCIATION.

A corps of trained nurses under St. John Ambulance Association and the British Red Cross is being formed by members of the Irish Nurses' Association, who have obtained certificates for first aid and ambulance work from St. John Ambulance Association.

This Corps is ready to take duty either at home or at the front. Miss MacDonnell, R.R.C., has consented to act as Corps Superintendent of the Co. Dublin St. John Brigade.

Miss Watson, late Acting-Matron at St. George's Hospital, has been sent to Paris to take charge of all the nurses there, for whom the "Order" is responsible. This will certainly add to their comfort and happiness.
