THE NURSING EXHIBITION AND CONFERENCE.

THE arrangements for these are now practically completed, and we hope, next week, to give our readers a complete programme of the proceedings which will take place at St. Martin's Town Hall from June 1st to June 13th. There are, however, a few details concerning which some information may with advantage be given, at once. So far as the Exhibition goes, it is divided into two separate parts, the first being a systematic exhibit of appliances employed in the care of the sick and injured, while a second Hall is devoted to some of the many valuable productions of a few leading manufacturers.

It is believed that the Exhibition will prove, as we had originally hoped it would, to be of much educational advantage to Nurses; because it will show, in the most easily-understood form, the valuable inventions which are constantly being made for their use. The whole exhibition, in short, is of an entirely practical character, and it is to be hoped that Nurses will largely avail themselves of its advantages.
