

The Nursing Conference.

PROGRAMME.

THE Nursing Conference to be held in connection with the Nursing Exhibition has been arranged to take place as follows:—

Wednesday, June 3rd.

Morning, 11 to 1.30—Mrs. BEDFORD FENWICK will preside and open the Conference.

(1) Paper: "The Profession of Nursing—Past, Present and Future," by Miss M. MOLLETT, Matron of the Royal South Hants Infirmary.

(2) Paper: "The Training School," by Miss ISLA STEWART, Matron of St. Bartholomew's Hospital.

Afternoon, 3 to 5.30—Miss MOLLETT will preside.

(1) Paper: "Nursing under the Poor Law," by Miss FRANCES HUGHES, Matron of the Kensington Infirmary.

(2) Paper: "District Nursing," by Miss ALICE WALLICH, late Superintendent of the Woolwich, Plumstead, and Charlton District Nursing Association.

Thursday, June 4th.

Afternoon, 3 to 5.30.

(1) Paper: "The Nursing of our Soldiers," by Mrs. BEDFORD FENWICK.

(2) Paper: "The Indian Army Nursing Service," by Miss CATHERINE G. LOCH, R.R.C., Lady Superintendent Indian Nursing Service, Punjab. Command.

Friday, June 5th.

Morning, 11 to 1.30—Miss BEACHCROFT will preside.

(1) Paper: "Private Nursing," by Miss EDITH MATHEW-LANOWE, Member Registered Nurses' Society.

(2) Paper: "On County Council Lecturers," by Miss HENRIETTA KENEALY, Member R.B.N.A., Member Sanitary Institute.

Afternoon, 3 to 5 p.m.—Dr. ANNIE McCALL will preside.

Paper: "The Evolution of the Midwife," by Miss MARGARET BREAY, late Acting Matron Metropolitan Hospital, Diplôme L.O.S.

These Conferences will take place in the Lecture Room on the ground floor of St. Martin's Town Hall, and are open to the public. All interested in Nursing questions are cordially invited to attend, as all questions which affect the Nursing profession are also matters of importance to the community generally. Discussion is therefore especially invited.

It is much to be regretted that there will not be time during the three days to discuss several Papers sent in, but we hope to publish them or reserve them for a future occasion.

Our Three Special Numbers.

WE have decided in the three next issues of the NURSING RECORD to devote special attention to matters of interest connected with the Nursing Exhibition. Many of our readers who are prevented from visiting the Exhibition itself will thus have an opportunity of hearing about it, and seeing the pictorial representations of special stalls and other objects of interest which we hope to place before them.

Our next issue will be the special "Home of Rest for Nurses," Number. We think it very appropriate to begin our series of the three Exhibition numbers with the "Home," as this is the object towards which any surplus profits derived from the Exhibition will be devoted. We shall in this number give illustrations of the exterior of the Home, and of the charming drawing-room. The Nurses who have such pleasing memories of visits paid to the Home at Brighton will be delighted to have the portrait of Mrs. Lionel Lucas, to whose generosity the Home is so greatly indebted. A portrait of her much-regretted brother, the late Sir Julian Goldsmid, will appear at the same time. Mrs. Lucas has presented the freehold of the Home, with the express wish that it shall be known in future as the "Julian Goldsmid Home for Nurses," in memory of that noble and generous man. So that it will be a great pleasure and interest to our readers to find these two portraits in the number of the RECORD issued on May 30th. In this first number will also be found the programme of each day's events at the Nursing Exhibition.

Our second special issue of June 6th will be the "Exhibition Number," and will contain full information about the exhibits. Illustrations will be given of some of the stalls and its most interesting and artistic features. The entertainments and demonstrations will also be fully described. This number will be equally interesting to those who visit the Exhibition, and to those who are unfortunately not able to do so by reason of time and distance.

The third Exhibition number on June 13th will give an account of the Conferences and the discussions on the very interesting professional questions which will be brought forward for consideration. And in this number we hope to give the portraits of the ladies who read papers at the Conferences. These three special numbers will be, in short, we hope, interesting souvenirs of this new departure in the Nursing world.
