REPLIES TO CORRESPONDENTS.

M.R.B.N.A., Edinburgh.—We quite sympathise with your views concerning the present management of the Royal British Nurses' Association. We think that reforms must come; it is only a matter of time. We do not therefore advise you to resign. "He who fights and runs away, may live to fight another day," but this is not the policy which commends itself to those whose opinion is worth most. Our advice to you is to remain a member, and to work for the true interests of the nursing profession.

work for the true interests of the nursing profession. Indignation, York.—We understand that the letters which were read at the Council Meeting of the Royal British Nurses' Association were from influential country matrons. That they were received, as we reported, is only one more instance of the way in which the opinion of the leading nurse members of the Association is treated. By all means write to the Executive Committee, but we are afraid you will get no reply beyond the stereotyped one that your letter has been received. Thank you for your kind expression of opinion concerning our own work for the Association.

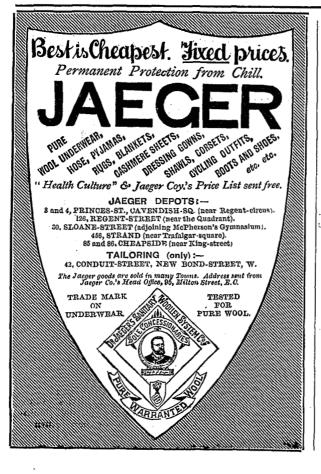

E. T., Learnington. - Why do you not answer the Prize Questions given each week in the NURSING RECORD? You might not get the prize, but they would be useful to you in familiarising you with the way to write examination papers, which you say is a difficulty to you. We instituted these questions in the hope of being useful to some of our readers who are at a disadvantage when they have to express what they know through the medium of a written examination.

Trained Nurse, London.—We should advise you to apply to Miss Atkinson, the Matron of the Lying-in Hospital, York Road, Lambeth, and ask when there is a vacancy for a midwifery pupil. The terms are, we believe, $\pounds 26$ 5s. for the three months' course. In addition to this you would have to pay an entrance-fee of $\pounds I$ Is. if you go up for the examination of the London Obstetrical Society.

M. E. F., St. Petersburg.—In England we use the best gravy beef, I lb. to the pint for beef tea—which is best made by infusion in a stone jar in the oven. For the extraction of pure beef juice—one ounce to the pound—we use the best steak. This beef juice is used in the Weir-Mitchell dietary, and is very expensive, as you can imagine.

Correspondent, Sydney.—Many thanks for your kind letter. We hope soon to receive the articles you mention. The photographs are charming.

H. G. M., High Barnet.-Advertise in the RECORD or medical papers. Such posts are somewhat difficult to obtain.
