REPLIES TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Miss E. C. Smith, Hampstead.—Card received, we will deal with your questions in Medical Matters next week.

Miss L. Waddington, Boole.—Your letter will appear next week. We quite sympathise with your views.

Miss Rachel Leaver, Blackheath.—Answers to Prize questions received with coupons. The competition is open to all our readers.

Miss E. M. Newman, Tunbridge Wells.—Answers to Prize questions received. We were so pleased to receive your sister's interesting letter and the photographs. Shall we forward the remuneration through you?

Miss E. R. Wortabet, Willey.—Your letter will appear in an early issue. The long report of meeting has crowded out correspondence this week.

Mrs. Vine, Exmouth.—We should advise your friend to apply to Dr. Fletcher Little, 32, Harley Street, Cavendish Square. He is a well-known instructor. The art of massage cannot be learnt in half a dozen lessons, and requires constant practice.

Miss Amy Hastings, Leeds.—We shall be pleased to see you the day and hour appointed. We should advise you to write and consult Miss Young, the Matron, Johannesburg Hospital, South Africa. She would be able to give you reliable information. Nurses usually make good colonists, especially if they do not expect too much.

Sister C., London.—We fear many members are of your mind, and are quite determined to resign if the standard for registration is lowered. The only result will be the co-operation of educated and certificated Nurses to enforce a system of State Registration. Personally, we have not heard one unbiassed medical man or Nurse support the scheme suggested by the Sub-Committee of the Royal British Nurses' Association.

Miss S. Stone, Blackpool.—We believe journalism is the best paid of all the women's professions, but a distinct talent for such work is required. Many women journalists earn from £200 to £300 a year, and there are a few who earn much more than that.
