Comments and Replies.

REPLIES TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Miss M. S., Dover.—We are much obliged for your letter; as the question is one which has roused much interest, and upon which we have had many inquiries, we hope to deal fully with the matter shortly.

Nurse M., Derby.—We should advise you to take in and read, the Woman's Signal. It only costs one penny weekly, and is full of information on subjects of special interest to women. It is quite unlike any other paper written for women; for the most part the so-called "ladies' papers" are edited by men, who appear to think that women are only interested in fashions, frivolities, and gossip; but the Woman's Signal treats its readers as if they were intelligent beings, and really cared to know, and understand, something about the public questions which affect them closely.

A Constant Reader, Swansea.—We should advise you to obtain "How to be Trained as a Hospital Nurse," post free, 1s. 2d., from the Manager, NURSING RECORD Offices, 11, Adam Street, Strand. This will give you the information you need. We are very glad that you find the NURSING RECORD interesting and helpful.

Miss —, Woking.—If you cannot obtain the NURSING RECORD at the bookstall at your station, why do you not write to Messrs. W. H. Smith, and say so? Even if they do not keep it—which they should do at an important station like Woking—it could be got down in a few hours from London. If you have any difficulty write to us again, and we will have the matter rectified.

Disheartened, London.—Do not resign. "He who fights and runs away may live to fight another day"! But he is not respected as is the man who sticks to his guns, and who, if need be, dies in defending the cause he has espoused. The cause is a good one and worth fighting for, and, moreover, in the end, truth and justice are bound to prevail.

Enquirer, Liverpool.—We should advise you to spend the time in a fever hospital; you will find that experience in fever nursing will be most useful to you, as you intend to take up private nursing.
