NURSING QUACKS.

A WELL-KNOWN medical man has been good enough to send us the following advertisement cut out of a London newspaper, requesting us to give our opinion concerning it:—

"ADVICE FREE TO LADIES.—Worth a King's Ransom!—Nurse Clark (certificated) gives advice gratis. Her remarkable formula is the most successful remedy beneath the circuit of the Sun; it cannot possibly fail. Nurse Clark's Formula gives Roses to the Cheek, Brightness to the Eye, Tone to the System, and Stimulus to the Brain. Write for full and free instructions (in confidence) to Nurse Clark, care of Domestic Drug Company,———."

There can be no two opinions upon this matter. If Nurse Clark were certificated, we consider that her conduct would be most discreditable alike to herself, to the nursing profession, and to the Institution at which she was trained. We, therefore, prefer to believe that she is not a trained nurse at all. The extravagance of the claims made for her "formula" is so palpable as to deserve the strongest censure; and make it ridiculous to all sensible professional people. The advice is said to be free to ladies, and its value is probably equalled by the fee paid for it—actually equivalent to a hyperbolic "ransom".
