Comments and Replies.

Mrs. Fraser, Croydon.—Only thoroughly trained nurses are required for the Strangers' Hospital, Rio de Janeiro.

S. J., London, W. A., Leeds, C. G. D., Edinburgh.—A knowledge of French is indispensable. The utmost difficulty is met in selecting trained nurses where linguists are required. Sooner or later, no doubt, a candidate for training in a first-class nursing school will be required to know, at least, one foreign language. This is no hardship, as many other European nations make a knowledge of foreign languages compulsory in their educational curriculum, and in these days, when British nurses travel so widely with patients, those who do not know either French or German are deprived of many delightful trips, when doing private nursing.

Sister Alice, London.—You can obtain the Japanese paper air cushions at Messrs. Maw, Son, and Thompson's, Aldersgate Street, E.C. They are cheap, about 2/-, require very little effort to inflate, and are capital for travelling as they can be tucked away into very little space, and have no smell like india rubber when warm. You will find the Lavender Bouquet made by Flemings, 101, Leadenhall Street, E.C., extremely refreshing. It is manufactured from English Lavender, and is not sickly, like so many perfumes.

"Matron over the Border."—"We are not in the least disheartened on the Nursing question—all reforms come slowly in this country—we are comparatively a very slow people, and the active opposition by a certain section of medical men, mostly to be found on the new Council of the Royal British Nurses' Association, to the development of nursing into a legally organized profession is inevitable; the liberal minded section of the medical profession will leave the nurses to fight their own battle for legal status. They know very well that it is bound to come; the narrow and jealous section will fight, tooth and nail, to prevent professional co-operation and progress, and they will be supported by the ill-trained and ill-educated class of nurses, who fear the advent of a standard to which they can never attain. This is the history of the Royal British Nurses' Association in a nutshell. It is the history of medical reform and progress repeating itself. The American Matrons are doing the pioneer work for us Britishers, which is not a very dignified position for us; "but you can't pour out of a pitcher what is not in it."

Probationer, Leeds.—We should advise you to obtain "Hoblyn's Dictionary of Medical Terms," price 10s. 6d., published by Whittaker and Co., Paternoster Square. It is an invaluable and most handy book of reference. No probationer should be without one.

Monthly Nurse.—The milk of the Aylesbury Dairy Company, of St. Petersburg Place, Bayswater, and that of Messrs. Welford & Sons, of Elgin Avenue, Maida Vale, may always be relied upon. Messrs. Welford make a speciality of assed milk, and both firms supply sterilized milk, humanized milk, and Koumiss.

Subscriber, Birmingham.—Covers for binding the NURSING RECORD may be obtained post free from the NURSING RECORD Office, 11, Adam Street, Strand, price 2s. each. Indexes may be obtained, price 6d. each, post free. Readers' own volumes are bound complete, price 2s. 6d. each.

Country Reader.—The International Congress of Women is to be held in London next year. Many women are looking forward to it with the utmost interest.

EDITED BY MRS. FENWICK MILLER.

EVERY THURSDAY • PRICE 1d.

The "Woman's Signal" is THE Weekly Journal for Intelligent Women.

It divides its space between those matters which belong to Woman's Home Life (Cookery, Dress, Hygiene, Family Management, &c.) and the wider interest of the active-minded woman of to-day—the Education, Occupations, doings and ideas of their sex. Thus all women's interests are represented in its pages.

IT IS QUITE UNLIKE ANY OTHER LADIES' PAPER.

Please ask your newsagent, or order of Messrs. Smith's Railway Bookstalls, to get it for you for a week or two; you are sure to wish to continue it.

Offices: 30 MAIDEN LANE, LONDON, W.C.
