event.

The visit to London of Mme. Alphen Salvador, of Paris, has come at a propitious moment. On Thursday last she attended an At Home at 20, Upper Wimpole Street, given by Mrs. Bedford Fenwick in her honour, where many of those going to the Conference had the pleasure of making her acquaintance in anticipation of the great Amongst a crowd of guests were Miss M. Adelaide Nutting, President of the American Federation of Nurses, Miss Rutley, of the Californian Nurses' Association, and Miss Crosby, of Canada, who is to represent The Canadian Nurse, Miss Isla Stewart, Miss Cox Davies, Miss Barton, Miss H. Pearse, Miss Mollett, Miss Forrest, Mrs. Matthews, and Mrs. Walter Spencer. A brief yet charming little ceremony took place when Mrs. Fenwick introduced Mme. Salvador, and thanked her for her courtesy to Miss Stewart and herself during their visit to France, and for her invaluable help in the organisation of the forthcoming Nursing Conference.

Miss Barton, with a few graceful words, presented a bouquet from the National Council of Nurses of Great Britain and Ireland, composed of pink and mauve flowers tied with green ribbons—the colours of the national flowers of England, Scotland and Ireland—with which Mme. Salvador expressed herself as greatly pleased.

On the following day, Friday, Miss Isla Stewart of St. Bartholomew's, entertained Mme. Salvador at luncheon at the Matron's House. Miss Stewart is renowned for her charming hospitality, and upon this occasion everything was most beautifully done. Out of compliment to the guest of honour, red, white and blue had been chosen for the scheme of table decoration. Vases filled with cornflowers and white arabis, alternated with dishes piled up with magnificent red ripe strawberries. It was a pretty
