

where Miss Dickson had been Head Nurse, as the Sisters were then termed, she was put in charge of the Students' Wards, where her work will long be remembered gratefully by past students. This position she occupied until March, 1907, when she retired under the age limit with a pension. Her activity, however, was by no means exhausted, and she established a Trained Nurses' Home and Association, which she carried on successfully up to within a few weeks of her death.

She was a woman of a kindly and well-balanced disposition, who pursued her work in a quiet, unostentatious manner, content to do her very best from day to day, an excellent nurse, with a clear, cool head, and clever, deft hands, which enabled her to handle patients most skilfully, and carried the art of bandaging to perfection, and which she taught so successfully to succeeding generations of Royal Infirmary nurses.

Her memory will always be affectionately retained by those with whom she came into contact. Of her it may in truth be said:—

"Life's work well done,
Life's race well run,
Life's crown well won."

RESIGNATIONS.

As she has accepted the position of Secretary to the Irish Nurses' Association, she will still keep in touch with the nursing world of which she is a very popular and respected member.

At the Annual Meeting of the Dundee Sick Poor Nursing Society, held last week, at which Sir William Ogilvy Dalgleish, Bart., presided, the Directors reported, with regret, the resignation of the Lady Superintendent, Miss Mackay. Their report states that Miss Mackay has been at the head of the work in Dundee ever since its commencement, twenty years ago, and during that long period she has devoted herself in season and out of season to the interests of the Society and the sick poor of the city. Her pioneer efforts, when as yet suspicion existed, and the confidence of the poor had not been gained, are bearing much fruit to-day, and are remembered with sincerest gratitude.

Dr. Don, in seconding the adoption of the report, said that it showed in somewhat bald figures the work done for the Society by Miss Mackay, but figures could not express the devotion, anxiety, and love she had expended on that work.
