Infantile Mortality.

On the subject of infantile mortality, the Sanitary Committee of the Court of Common Council recommended last week that, by way of experiment, they should be authorised to incur an expenditure not exceeding £40 for one year in providing a supply of pure milk to mothers residing in the City who were unable to obtain the necessary nourishment for the proper breast feeding of their children.

A Practical Method.

The trouble so often experienced in getting the new baby to nurse is suddenly overcome by first pumping a little milk from the breast. Have ready a little of the milk in a medicine dropper, and as the nipple is put into the infant's mouth drop some milk into his mouth, and what he has tasted will be an incentive to work hard to obtain more, and he will go at his task with a will.
