NURSING ECHOES.GENERAL NEWS.

During a brief visit to Glasgow, notebook and pencil were in much request, for a month would not be long in which to see the many splendid hospitals and institutions which are the pride of the city, and are so liberally supported by its citizens.

It is impossible within the covers of a single journal to relate all that one saw, through the kindness and courtesy of the Matrons, but mention must be made of some specially interesting windows in the chapel of the Royal Infirmary, foremost one of Florence Nightingale, given by the Chairman (Mr. J. D. Hedderwick). The window, beautifully executed by Bell, represents Miss Nightingale in a simple gown of Royal blue, with white apron, collar and cuffs, and close-fitting cap, carrying a lamp. The noble, highly developed brow, smooth hair and straight parting, are to the life, the likeness excellent, and the Infirmary is to be congratulated on possessing so simple and dignified a portrait of the founder of modern nursing. The charming cherubic faces appearing in the border are portraits of the Chairman's children. Another window was given by past and present members of the nursing staff, and Miss Melrose had only to notify in the press that she was receiving donations, to have an immediate response from nurses in all four quarters of the globe. Dorcas (full of good works and alms deeds which she did) appropriately forms the subject of a third window.

Miss Beatrice Kent acknowledges with many thanks the following contributions towards the Nurses' Poster Parade against the misuse of their uniform:—Miss Mary Harvey, 2s.; Miss Emily Dinnie, 2s.; Miss M. Breay, 2s.; Miss Nicholas, 2s.; Miss E. Horton, 2s. The latter writes from Ayrshire:—"I was greatly delighted with the idea when I read of it in THE BRITISH JOURNAL OF NURSING, and should certainly have taken part had I been near enough. It is high time something was done to prevent this nefarious traffic in nurses' uniform."

Miss Kent hopes that a great many more nurses will make an effort to join the Parade. She has letters from matrons who approve, but owing to their official position are unable to take part in such a protest, and several nurses tell us that "they dare not come out." When off duty, we are of opinion that both matrons and nurses have a perfect right to make such
