

convenient. It is supplied in black or brown cowhide, and its fall-down front, which provides a clean surface on which to lay out articles ready for use, is specially admirable. The rectal feeding outfits, and the improved "Teterelles" for premature and weak babies should also be noted.

Stand C 3.—MESSRS. H. SYKES & Co., 78, New Street, Birmingham, will show their labour-saving appliances which are sure to attract attention. They include self-wringing mops, and an oil polish mop, which cleans and polishes in one operation.

Stand C 4.—MESSRS. PHILIP HARRIS & Co., Edmund Street, Birmingham, wholesale chemists, will have a comprehensive exhibit, the surgical section of which will include a new splint material, named pexuloid, an extremely light and non-inflammable celluloid.

Stands C 5-11.—MESSRS. NESBIT, EVANS & Co., LTD., Floodgate Street, Birmingham, will show hospital bedsteads and cots, with fittings adapted to various uses, in great variety.

Stands C 8 and 12.—MESSRS. CADBURY BROS., LTD., Bournville, Birmingham, will have an attractive exhibit, including Bournville Cocoa and Chocolate and other delicacies. The firm has two claims on public support—the purity and palatability of its goods, and the fact that the working conditions of those who produce them approximate the ideal, as those members of the Conference who accept Messrs. Cadbury's invitation to Bournville may see for themselves.

Stand C 13.—MESSRS. KEEN, ROBINSON & Co., LTD. (incorporated with J. & J. Colman, Ltd., London and Norwich), Denmark Street, St. George's in the East, London, E., has a reputation of nearly two centuries, as Keen's Mustard has been on the market since 1742. Robinson's "Patent" Barley is also a household word.

Stand C 15.—EUCRYL, LTD., 61 and 63, Lant Street, Borough, S.E. The large number of nurses and others who use Eucryl Tooth Powder know it to be a most satisfactory and popular dentifrice, and visitors to the Exhibition will have the opportunity of hearing much about its merits. The proprietors guarantee that it keeps the teeth antiseptic, free from decay, and makes them like pearls. Eucryl Cold Cream Antiseptic Toilet Soap is also much to be commended.

Stand C 16.—MESSRS. JAMES SLATER & Co., Engineers, Ltd., Wells Street, Oxford Street, London, by Royal Warrant to the King, will show their hospital fittings, including sterilizers, and electric and gas-heated Inlet-flap ventilator.

From which it will be seen that there will be very much to interest visitors to this first nursing exhibition in the Midlands.

DON'T FORGET.

Don't forget at the Birmingham Conference to buy a copy of this Journal—price one penny weekly only. When read, send on to a nurse friend. And if you like it, please order it weekly from your newsagent, and get your friends to do likewise.

Don't forget to enquire into the Registration question, if you have not already done so. Collect all the literature you can on the question, and study it. Then set to and do all you possibly can to further the movement for the benefit of sick people.

Don't forget to learn all you can about the Nurses' International Memorial to Miss Nightingale. You will find a leaflet and a letter from Miss L. L. Dock the International Secretary at THE BRITISH JOURNAL OF NURSING stands, outside and inside the Exhibition Hall. They will be freely distributed. Then please ask for a Collecting Card, and open the list by subscribing One Day's Pay in support of the foundation of the Florence Nightingale Chair of Nursing and Health, which the nurses of the world propose to endow in her honour, and for the benefit of the nursing profession, in connection with a Woman's College in London.

Don't forget to carefully inspect the Exhibits, both those fashioned by trained nurses, and the products and appliances displayed in the Great Hall by well-known business firms, the majority of which are designed for the comfort and well-being of the public, in health and in sickness; and don't forget to patronise those firms, and the carefully selected advertisers to be found in this Journal, in preference to others.

Don't forget that on the Stand of THE BRITISH JOURNAL OF NURSING "A History of Nursing," by Miss L. L. Dock and Miss M. A. Nutting, will be on view, that it is published by Messrs. G. P. Putnam's Sons, 24, Bedford Street, Strand, London, W.C., that the price is ros. 6d. net per volume, and that no nurse's education is complete until she knows the history of her own profession.

NURSES' REQUISITES.

A MODERN NURSE'S NEED SUPPLIED.

The advantage of having at hand a reliable book of reference needs no enlarging to nurses, and a most attractive work is "The Science and Art of Nursing," in four volumes, which is regarded by many nurses as an encyclopædia to which they can always turn in difficulty. It not only gives information on ordinary nursing subjects, but discusses such questions as salaries and opportunities for advancement in the nursing world, and in the wider fields that open out from it.

The book can be acquired on convenient terms of monthly payments after delivery, and those interested are invited to send a postcard to the publishers, the Waverley Book Company, Ltd., 7, 8 and 9, Old Bailey, London, E.C., asking for their free booklet on the work, which shows contents, gives names of authors, and particulars
