CONSERVING THE CHILDREN.

In an article in the Glasgow Herald the writer states that in the great international conflict now raging one or two things have been brought home to us with considerable force. One is that the security of our country and everything for which our country stands depends, and will more and more depend, not merely on the efficiency but on the numbers of our people. Another thing is that the terrible destruction of human life involved in this conflict makes imperative the duty of the country towards education in mothercraft. The welfare of motherhood and infancy must be
