

ELBOW WOUND: EXPLOSIVE BULLET.

Wound dressed and treated by Carrell's method, healed in four weeks.

PRAISE FOR UNIT 16/21.

In a letter from the Médecin Chef of Ambulance 16/21—now en repos—referring to the Sisters, he writes:—"Allow me to take advantage of this circumstance to tell you what technical competency, devotion and spirit of sacrifice these ladies have shown in this formation. On their feet night and day, and their collaboration has been the means of saving a great number of wounded, the greater part being thoracic, abdominal, gangrene, gas and shell-shock."

General Nollet, who knew them all, insisted on coming himself to give them the recompense which was due to them (Croix de Guerre). We do not forget that it is to the French Flag Nursing Corps that we owe the advantage of this happy combination, and we thank it heartily on our behalf, and on behalf of the wounded."

We reproduce photographs of two cases attended by the Sisters of injuries caused by explosive bullets, treated by the Carrell method, which, owing to first-class surgery and nursing, made marvellous recoveries.

Sisters Christina Mitchell and Alice Williamson are the first members of the Corps to find themselves on duty in Germany.

As the ambulances and hospitals are demobilised, the Sisters are returning home, some of them after four years' splendid service to our noble Allies, the French. Sisters Warner and McMurrich will be leaving France for Canada at an early date.

"Let me tell you," writes the latter, "how much I have enjoyed my work in France. It has been a wonderful experience, a beautiful revelation of all that is best in human nature. In the three years I have been at the Front I have never heard one unkind word, nor one word of complaint from either wounded or orderlies. No wonder we were able to work."

The French people have proved themselves absolutely heroic throughout the war, "a fait l'admiration de tous"!
