

ADDRESS OF THANKS TO MRS. BEDFORD FENWICK.

The Address of Thanks presented to Mrs. Bedford Fenwick on the passing of the Nurses' Registration Acts, and on the occasion of her appointment as a member of the General Nursing Council for England and Wales, in recognition of her life's work for the nursing profession, which has been beautifully illuminated by Mr. H. W. Donald, is now on view at 431, Oxford Street, W., and the Sister-in-Charge will be pleased to show it to subscribers and others.

The Address is surrounded by a illuminated the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, and the Distinguished Order of the Greek Red Cross.

There are also scrolls bearing the initials of the General Nursing Council, the Central Committee for the State Registration of Nurses, the Society for the State Registration of Trained Nurses, the Territorial Force Nursing Service, the Registered Nurses' Society, the Nursing Section at the Chicago Exhibition 1893 (organised by Mrs. Fenwick under the British Royal Commission) the International Council of Nurses, the Trained Nurses' Association of India, and the American Nurses' Association, of both of which Mrs. Fenwick is an Hon. Member, and the French Flag Nursing Corps of which she acted as Hon. Superintendent during the Great War. All these will indicate to Mrs. Fenwick's descendants in border of roses of conventional design, which also divides the Address into two parts. The colouring of the border is most delicate, and introduced into it with consummate skill are the arms of England and Wales, the Lozenge granted, by George III, to one Ann Armroyd, Mrs. Fenwick's great great grandmother, the Fenwick crest (a phoenix arising from the flames), the black-and-white shield of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, where Mrs. Fenwick, as Matron, organised the Nurse Training School on the three years' term of training forty years ago, and instituted the first Gold Medal awarded to Nurses, and which is the Badge of the Nurses' League, the beautiful silver badge of the Royal British Nurses' Association, the badge of the Matrons' Council of Great Britain and Ireland, the Cross of the Associates of generations to come something of the scope of her work for the nursing profession at large.

The Address is illuminated on vellum, and framed in a dull gold frame of simple and effective design. The wording has been carefully thought out, and is happily expressed, and although it is always difficult in an Address of this kind to include all that the donors would wish to say, the Committee responsible are to be congratulated both on its phraseology, and on the many important items touched upon in so small a space. It is, in brief, a history of Mrs. Fenwick's professional career.

The subscribers to the testimonial will, we are sure, desire to convey to Mr. Donald their appreciation for placing their gratitude to their untiring leader on record, in so beautiful and original a form.
