

INVENTIONS, PREPARATIONS, &c.

WE believe that labour-saving articles of general utility are always of interest to our readers, so we therefore invite their attention to Chancellor's "Rising Sun Stove Polish," which, we think, would be found to be of great use in Hospitals, or other large establishments, where time is valuable, and the saving of it, if possible, a necessity. So quickly and effectually is a brilliant appearance produced by this polish, that now fires are so much in use, it is essential that we should know the best means by which our stoves can be kept clean. It can be obtained from any oil-shop.

OUR attention has been called to the "Anti-Varicose" Garters, and after a careful scrutiny and a practical test we can certainly recommend them to the notice of our readers. It is an ingenious little invention, which combines comfort and utility with security. It does not encircle the limb, going practically only half-way round, and this on the top, so that it in no way impedes the circulation, leaving the bend of the limb at the knee (where the veins come to the surface) perfectly free. They are easily adjusted; cost, one shilling prepaid; and can be obtained from all drapers, or direct from the company at Leeds.
