THE PASSING BELL.

DEATH OF MISS EUPHEMIA ROSS.

It is with deep regret that we record the death of Miss Euphemia Ross, S.R.N., late Matron of the Western Fever Hospital, Fulham, under the Metropolitan Asylums Board. Straight, true, courageous, loyal to her friends, and with a deep sense of professional responsibility, Miss Ross is an irreparable loss, and one of the decreasing body of pioneers, who, by personal service and generous financial support of the movement for the State Registration of Nurses, helped to secure the passing of the Acts for the State Registration of Nurses. Her record of work in this connection is highly honourable.

Miss Euphemia Ross was the youngest daughter of the Rev. Wm. Ross, Minister of Embleton, Northumberland. She was born at The Manse, Embleton, on December 20th, 1857. As she was very fond of children and showed some aptitude for nursing, she entered the Liverpool Royal Infirmary in January, 1880, as probationer nurse, and after completing her training, remained on as ward sister for a short time. From 1885 to 1889 she was successively Matron of the Fever Hospitals of Warrington and
