

their professional career, and our second picture shows Miss Morrison with the graduating class of 1927. Our readers will agree that the class, whose flower is the Iris, colours purple and gold, and motto Spectemur Agendo (Let us be seen by our deeds) is a charming one.

Graduation takes place in a church in the presence of a large assembly of people and each graduate takes the Florence Nightingale pledge in turn, and, after an Address has been given by some distinguished stranger, mounts the platform, is presented with her Diploma, and then Miss Morrison pins on the badge of each newly made graduate.

in their turn, visit the Dominion and, in obtaining a wider vision of nursing as a whole, add to their efficiency and happiness thereby.

It will be remembered that at the Interim Conference convened by the International Council of Nurses and held last year at Geneva, Miss A. W. Gill, R.R.C., National Council of Nurses of Great Britain, expressed the opinion that one of the practical issues of this Conference should be to arrange for an interchange of nurses between the different countries. She pointed out that doctors, professors and students were afforded this opportunity, and she

After that, in an adjacent hall, there are congratulations, supper, and general good will and happiness.

The associated functions sometimes extend over a week, and the whole ceremony is so impressive as to make Graduation Day, its inspirations and obligations, an unforgettable one in the lives of the nurses.

We wish Miss Morrison and Miss Misner much happiness during their stay amongst us, and the acquisition of knowledge which will be of use to them on their return to Canada. And we hope that nurses from this country will, thought that with the help of the International Council of Nurses it should be possible to work out some scheme for the interchange of nurses between the different countries where there were Associations of Nurses affiliated to the I.C.N. There were, she pointed out, many nurses who desired to widen their experience and the opportunity of working in other countries.

She proposed that the Board of Directors should be invited to work out such a scheme, and this was seconded by Mrs. Bedford Fenwick, and unanimously agreed.

MISS PEARL L. MORRISON, F.B.C.N.
Superintendent, McKellar General Hospital and the Graduation Class 1927.
