MALCOLM WILSON'S INVALID WINE.—One of the greatest troubles to the Medical and Nursing professions is to get some wholesome and beneficial drink for their convalescent patients—a drink which shall combine pleasantness of taste with tonic and nutritive qualities. These requirements are forthcoming to the fullest extent in Malcolm Wilson's Invalid Wine. In its special line it is really a most wonderful production, and is a boon, not only to the invalid whose appetite has succumbed to sickness or disease, but also to the Doctor, who has to prescribe for the restoration of nature's healthy forces, and to the Nurse on whose shoulders is laid the charge of seconding the efforts of medical science. This wine is not merely a wine of delicious flavour; it contains a large quantity of nutriment in a concentrated form and condition most easily assimilated by the most enfeebled digestion. For all cases of impoverished blood, and the distressing resultants therefrom, during convalescence, it is invaluable, as proved by analysis, which has shown the following results: "Soluble and insoluble phosphates, and a small quantity of manganese were found in the ash. Ferric chloride showed the presence of tannin." The wine is full-bodied, and is already largely prescribed by physicians of eminence and wide experience. Professor Wanklyn, M.R.C.S., after analysing it, says: "It is very rich, strong, and nutritious. I am able to recommend it very strongly. It is pre-eminently adapted for the use of invalids who require a generous dietary." Equally emphatic in his praise of this wine is Dr. W. Johnstone, F.I.C., F.C.S., who submitted it to an exhaustive analysis. He declares it to be "a powerful stimulant to the appetite and digestion, and in cases of consumption and general debility, it would act as a direct agent to repair and replace the lost physical and mental powers, produced by the constant drain and waste on the system." To these statements of scientists can be added the testimonials of a large number of people who have derived benefit from the use of the wine. Another thing in its favour is that its price renders it accessible to all classes. It only remains for us to say that the sole importers of this desideratum for the sick room are Messrs. Hughes and Morris, wine merchants, 4, Savoy Street, Strand, London, W.C.
