CHARITABLE SWEATING.

IN another column, our readers will find an important letter, containing copies of a correspondence which has passed between the Nurses belonging to the Private Nursing Home of Guy's Hospital, and the Superintendent of that Home, and the Treasurer of that Hospital. With the very temperate tone of these letters no fault can possibly be found, and we commend it to the earnest notice of our contemporaries and the public.

It is a notorious fact in Nursing circles, that Guy's must be a most difficult place for a Matron, who, feeling her responsibilities, is earnestly desirous that her department should move with the times, and that her Nurses should receive the advantages which those in similar English Institutions obtain. It is universally acknowledged, by all who are acquainted with Nursing matters, that Miss VICTORIA JONES, the present Matron of Guy's Hospital, has occupied that position in so admirable a manner, that, despite all its disadvantages, the Nursing School of Guy's stands deservedly high in the estimation of all whose judgment is worth attention. Miss FLORENCE NOTT-BOWER also has earned for herself the gratitude and esteem, we are led to believe, of all
